On October 15, 2005, Stayin' Alive, a tribute to the Bee Gees & 70's Disco, performed for an enthusiastic audience at the Reg Lenna Civic Center, in Jamestown, NY. This beautifully renovated 1920's movie palace turned performing arts center rocked to the music of the Incomparable Bee Gees. Stayin' Alive's Bee Gees Tribute performance was right on the mark. Their sound transported you back in time to an original Bee Gees concert. Al Spohn's high falsetto replication of Barry Gibb's vocals spotlighted in such songs as "More Than A Woman", "Night Fever" & "Stayin Alive" was astounding. All the band members were excellent musicians and they harmonized beautifully.

Their 70's Disco set was fun, fun, fun! The costumes for this set were wild! The songs they chose as representative of this era were great and again their performances were right on. The band members were really wonderful to work with; they were professional and cooperative. Look out for their wild and crazy sides - that love of life and people that all musical artists have that keeps them performing year after year after year - their exuberance for performing captured the audience and swept them away to another time and other places.

This was a fun show and we highly recommend Stayin' Alive!
